Committed to Agriculture, Proud to Be Different

At Central Texas Farm Credit, we often talk about how Farm Credit supports rural communities and agriculture. It's our mission, and we're proud to fulfill it every day. But what does that really mean?

As a cooperative, we're owned by you and our many other stockholders. Our board members are borrowers themselves, who are elected by their fellow borrowers. They provide important direction and ensure the safety and soundness of our organization. Our board members are committed to maintaining a financially strong association to be sure that we can provide a reliable source of credit for farmers, ranchers and rural property owners. Our directors also feel strongly about supporting the next generation of farmers and ranchers and ensuring that we always have the staff in place to serve your needs. They know firsthand the ups and downs of the agricultural industry and are here for you during both good times and bad.

When we have a good year, our customer-owners benefit. Our net income is used in only two ways: It's retained as capital by our association to build financial strength that ensures future generations a reliable source of credit, and — typically — the majority of our profits are passed on to you as patronage refunds that effectively lower our average borrower's interest rate by about 1.5 percentage points. We've proudly returned over $60 million dollars to our shareholders since 1994, including a record $6.3 million cash patronage paid this spring based on our 2017 earnings.

Those aren't the only things that make Central Texas Farm Credit different. Our staff is willing to go the extra mile — or 100 miles, if necessary — to help you out. We'll come to your farm or business to touch base, talk about your operation and see if we can provide additional support. What's more, our deep understanding of agriculture is genuine. Most of us grew up in rural areas, and some of us still have a hand in farming or ranching, so we personally understand the business decisions you face.

We try to make a difference in your life and your ag business by offering specialized services and loan products. Some of these include special loan programs for young, beginning and small farmers, cash management products, equipment financing, refinancing, business expansions, and short-term loans for operating and equipment needs, including lines of credit and more.

Ultimately, however, what makes the Farm Credit difference is personal relationships — such as relationships that are formed when you become a customer-owner of the co-op or when our loan officers literally take their expertise to your farm or business. We are truly committed to rural America and supporting the men and women who produce our food, fiber and fuel.

Thank you for choosing Central Texas Farm Credit as your lending partner.

IN OUR COMMUNITY

At the Stock Shows

We at Central Texas Farm Credit love supporting our local stock shows. We buy buckles and donate them to the Early FFA for their chapter stock show, and to the Menard and McCulloch County junior livestock shows.

Helping Out: Hurricane Harvey

Central Texas Farm Credit team member Sharon Halfmann selflessly donated her time and resources to help others during Hurricane Harvey. Sharon, along with 12 volunteers from the animal rescue group Critter Shack Rescue in San Angelo, organized a Hurricane Harvey Relief Trip.

The results? Three horse trailers, a passenger van, and an SUV full of supplies for people and pets. The team traveled over 1,000 miles between Rockport, Port Aransas, Corpus Christi, Bay City, Wharton, Refugio, Beaumont, Mauriceville and San Angelo.

Central Texas also proudly supported San Angelo FFA members and their efforts to build and sell a trailer to benefit area Houston FFA chapters that sustained loss and damage from Hurricane Harvey. The trailer will be displayed at several major stock shows in 2018.

Finally, team members in our San Saba office delivered 20 cases of water during Central Texas TeleCommunications' water drive on Sept. 1.

CENTRAL TEXAS RETURNS RECORD $6.3 MILLION PATRONAGE TO MEMBERS

The board of directors of Central Texas Farm Credit recently approved the payment of a record $6.3 million cash patronage refund to our customers, based on the co-ops solid earnings in 2017. Checks were mailed to customers in March.

The record patronage reduces the effective interest rate paid by each borrower in 2017 by an average of 1.5 percentage points. The amount members receive varies, as patronage is calculated based on their individual contribution to the association's profitability.

We are pleased that our cooperative has the financial strength to provide this all-cash patronage refund to our customers,

As a customer owned cooperative, we provide our member customers with financing at competitive rates, and also return surplus earnings to them after meeting our needs for a strong capital base.

OUR YEAR IN REVIEW

ANNUAL REPORT PRESENTS THE BIG PICTURE AND THE DETAILS

For leisure reading, an annual report can't compete with a good novel, but if you want to know how Central Texas Farm Credit is doing, there's no better source than our annual report.

"It gives you insight," says Phil Guthrie, who serves on the Farm Credit Bank of Texas Board of Directors. "It will tell you how management views the world and how the company functions."

Central Texas Farm Credit posts the annual report on the association's website within 75 days of year end and also mails a copy to each stockholder.

Hit the Highlights

In recent years, annual reports have become very detailed because reporting standards have become more complex under federal regulations. However, if you don't have time to read the entire report, Guthrie recommends hitting the highlights. To read our report:

- Start with the summary page to find out if the co-op grew or made money.
- Check the auditor's report to see if an outside firm issued a clean, unqualified opinion.
- Read the first few notes to the financial statements that describe the business and its accounting policies.

"For the average reader, those are the things to look at," says Guthrie, who is the CEO of two companies and former chief financial officer of Southwest Airlines. "I see tons of annual reports, and those are the things I go to first before I do any deep dives."

Understand the Numbers

Following are key sections of an annual report. As you read the charts and graphs, keep in mind that dollars are stated in thousands, so a figure written as $1,000 is actually $1 million.

- The five-year summary condenses key financial indicators onto one page. At a glance, you'll see trends for net income, patronage, loans and assets, financial ratios and more. Return on assets and return on equity indicate how effectively the cooperative is generating earnings — the higher the ratios, the better.
- The management's discussion and analysis covers financial performance, risk management, economic conditions and trends from management's perspective.
- The financial statements tell how much the co-op earned, spent and had left over. They include the balance sheet, income statement, statement of members' equity, and cash flow statement.
- The notes to the financial statements — the footnotes at the back of the report — put the numbers in context and help you analyze how the co-op is doing financially.
